...enthusiastic, imaginative, creative, committed, investigative and curious, flexible and courageous without fear of failure – they simply love to learn! These characteristics relate to skills which are vital for success in the 21st century.

Our Vision

is children growing up in a supportive environment which encourages them to unfold their inherent talents, because their surroundings have a decisive influence on this development – first the parents and the family, later also daycare, kindergarten and school. If children find a stable basis for their roots, enough stimulation for growth and plenty of room to develop, they can grow up with a joy all of their own.

AREAS OF DEVELOPMENT

in Early Years Education

The aim of early childhood education is to support children comprehensively and to inspire them to learn and discover independently. Children are accompanied in this process by educational specialists. Logically arranged development areas offer them structure and guidance in the planning of activities and projects, and help to convey complex topics in an age- and development-appropriate way.

In practice, the areas of development cannot be so clearly distinguished from each other. Almost all activities in everyday preschool and childcare life promote skills that can be categorized within different areas. This means that movement activities are beneficial to motor skills and coordination as well as perception and cognition. The promotion of social and emotional skills is closely linked to language skills. Experiments and observations in the STEM fields of science, technology, engineering, and mathematics appeal to curious children who like to measure, count, arrange, and compare.

On the following pages you will find an overview of how our products support the various development areas. This will help you to select a product in a structured manner and design your portfolio comprehensively.

Fine Motor Development

Children see the world with different eyes and feel a permanent desire to move and explore. Their journeys of discovery are full of challenges. Developing fine motor skills is crucial to overcoming these challenges. Children have to learn dexterity with both hands and hand-eye coordination. It is exciting to watch a child as they pluck a piece of grass for the first time, run sand through their fingers, or fold a piece of paper. They need an educational environment that offers a wide range of stimulating opportunities that will develop their fine motor skills.

Physical Development & Team Play

Movement comes naturally to people and it is only by moving that we learn about the world around us. When children run, climb, swing, use ropes or dance, they feel what their body is doing and are aware of every step. Team games that involve lots of moving and playing are fun and strengthen the bonds within the group.

Our expert says:

Reinhard Liebisch

Physical education expert (focus: children's health and development promotion through movement)

Combine movement and education!

This increases children's physical activity and learning while moving oneself is particularly child-friendly. For example: Choose a short story and read it out once. At the second time, children can reenact the plot and turn it into movement. Children enjoy slipping into the roles of persons or animals and using their bodies as a means of expression. This can also be integrated into projects of the topic Circus – children can balance like tightrope walkers, do gymnastics with a ball or jump through hoops like lions. There are no limits to your imagination! Also in the field of sciences children can gain fundamental experiences through movement: they sense the effect of air resistance when moving a parachute up and down with their arms. And when they hold hands and spin in a circle they sense the effect of physical forces. Why not try it together: how fast do you have to run to keep a newspaper sheet at your someone's chest and stomach without holding it? It is very exciting for children and often an aha-experience to physically experience laws of nature through movement.

Perception & Cognition

The senses are our window to the world. They enable us to perceive the abundant world around us. We then piece these experiences together to form our image of the world. Experiences that involve several senses at once are particularly memorable.

As they develop, children are constantly faced with new cognitive challenges. Babies learn primarily by observing and imitating. They try out the same things again and again. Around the age of three, children start to perceive the difference between themselves and the world around them; this is a stage of rapid cognitive development.

Weaving Circle

The colorful robust weaving circle is a fun way to teach children learning content and to support fine motor skills, hand-eye coordination and concentration. 0, 3, 6, 9, 12, 15, 18 ... Each number sequence in the tables from 1 to 10 becomes a clear, symmetrical pattern where children can check by themselves if it is correct. Great shapes and figures can be woven, even without numerical skills. Whilst doing so, children intuitively acquire first knowledge of figures.

Learning Concepts

Humans have a natural inquisitiveness about the world. For children, everything they come across is fundamentally interesting and exciting. Early Years education is about capturing and building on children's curiosity and enthusiasm for learning new things. Concepts and resources developed with experts in the field are used to teach children the fundamentals about shapes, surfaces, patterns, and numbers. A wide range of games develop their working memory, cognitive flexibility, and impulse control. Children are then ready for learning and for life, as they will need these core skills in many different situations.

Development Path

of cognitive and mathematical learning

Children are born learners. They are already equipped with cognitive skills when they are born – today we use the terms “competent” and “active infants”. In this respect, research’s view of Piaget’s levels of cognitive development has changed. But one of his findings is valid: cognitive development is not a passive maturation process. Very young children are already actively making the world that surrounds them their own. Children are dependent on contact with other children and caring adults. Thus, learning takes place in a common process of construction. Cognitive development looks at mental structures and processes. It is about the development of thinking, problem-solving, and memory as well as deciding and judging. These processes do not appear immediately, but in certain actions or on the basis of certain “errors in reasoning”. Children’s cognitive and mathematical abilities also vary with context. Thus, some (arithmetical) tasks succeed better in everyday and familiar surroundings than in school settings.

Children in control of themselves

FEX - Fostering executive functions

Applied brain research findings

At home and in preschool, children quickly give in to their first impulse, forget established rules, become loud or defiant ... This is a very normal behavior at this age. They must first develop self-regulation. In order to do so, children need, in addition to well-qualified teachers, a variety of playful and meaningful opportunities related to everyday life that they can practice. The ability to self-regulate is based on the executive functions. A whole range of abilities is meant by this: acting purposefully, blocking out distracting stimuli and thoughts, and responding flexibly when a situation changes. It has been proven in several studies that executive functions are important because you get through life better with them. They are also critical for success in learning. And they can be trained with sports, music, theater, (manual) work ... and with special games. At the same time, children learn skills, attitudes, and actions that will enable them to have better control of their life.

Getting into Shape for the Future!

Starting from scratch

Brick on brick – Building one's own learning universe

Children today are growing up in a mechanized, automated, and digitalized world. In order to meet these challenges, children need to build essential skills such as creative thinking, self-esteem, and working alone as well as being a good team player. The OECD study "Starting Strong 2017" demonstrates that early childhood education is important for developing these skill sets. This approach was already clear to Friedrich Fröbel who founded the first kindergarten in 1840, thus laid the cornerstone for an innovative early childhood education concept. In his day, he was considered to be a rebel, yet today he is as relevant as ever. Fröbel's "Spielgaben" (Gifts) are both simple and sophisticated at the same time. Inspired by them, we have further developed Fröbel materials, which are captivating with their clear shapes and flexible creative techniques. The materials always build from the simple to the complex, offer children a variety of design ideas, and create many learning opportunities.

Getting children into shape for the future means stimulating, encouraging, and empowering them in a self-directed way.

Fröbel Marble Game

The appealing, clear shape of the ball in the bright colors of the rainbow and the material wood, which Friedrich Fröbel anchored in his educational concept, makes the game particularly inviting. To increase the degree of difficulty, children can also try doing this with pliers or 2 spoons.

Contents: 36 wooden balls (4.6 cm) in the colors of the rainbow (6 each in red, orange, yellow, green, blue, violet), 1 board (31 x 31 cm), 1 pair of wooden pliers, can be dismantled into 2 spoons, 30 template cards, 1 set of instructions.

Features:

From the simple to the differentiated

Children best receive wooden blocks in units that build one on top of the other. All blocks have a uniform basic size. Children first explore the blocks in free play. With each building kit, more complex shapes follow, such as prisms, bridges, and cylinders for an increasingly differentiated play. The children can form numerous shapes and structures with many variations from the block shapes. Fröbel called these Forms of Beauty, Forms of Life, and Forms of Knowledge.

Using their own hands, children understand the basics of geometry and mathematics. Through play, they open up for themselves the world and its regularities.

Weaving à la Fröbel

Weaving following Fröbel – with language support

You begin with easy, repeating weaving movements, which can be increased in difficulty, culminating in independent weaving. According to Fröbel, this encourages children to become self-acting and to develop their whole creative potential. The focus is on the exemplary and on counting, as becomes clear from the language support by the teacher:

"Thread one down, one up..." (simple pattern)
"Thread three up, three down..." alternating with
"Thread one up, one down..." (complex pattern)

These are just examples for counting verses repeated over and over again ("Always up and down"). Through playful use of these verses, children are introduced to arithmetic and develop an initial idea of symmetry and shapes. As a result of having to skip one, two, or three weaving rows, children also learn to keep to fixed structures and rhythms.

Weaving à la Fröbel fosters in children basic mathematical knowledge as well as language expression by the constant repetition of the language support.

Science, Technology, Engineering, Mathematics

As humans, we experience curiosity throughout our lives. It drives us to re-explore the world around us every day. Children in particular enjoy this, as they are passionate explorers. Their enthusiasm for discovering, exploring and investigating natural materials, everyday objects or toys is boundless. Children love climbing trees, building a den out of sticks, or watching beetles in an insect box. They also love taking a photo with a parent's mobile or playing their favorite song using voice commands. All these experiences build the foundations for areas that they will meet in the next stage of their life: Mathematics, research, experimenting, technology, and digital learning.

LEARN ABOUT THE DIGITAL WORLD

ON THE ROAD TO CODE

... we introduce children to the exciting digital world. We teach them the fundamental skills needed to understand digital media and express their own creativity. Our DigitalStarter products are designed for children's everyday life and enable them to learn about abstract topics through play. We focus on analog products which are fun to train logic, creativity, and abstraction skills.

Computational thinking is the ability to recognize problems, apply abstraction skills, and identify the individual steps needed to solve them. The solution is intended to be implemented by both people and computers.

SEGMENTATION

A complicated task is separated out into disparate, solvable problems. The principle is applied to both everyday tasks and when creating an algorithm.

PATTERN RECOGNITION

Repetitions and regularities occurring in a lot of information are recognized. The features common to all objects in a category are identified and differentiated from the rest.

ALGORITHM

A problem or a whole group of problems can be solved by defining the separate stages of a solution, their order, and any dependencies. The algorithm indicates the precise course of action to solve a defined problem.

ABSTRACTION

The essential facts in a large group of information are identified. Non-essential details can thus be ignored, simplifying the problem. General solution strategies can be developed using the principles of abstraction.

DigitalStarter: Arranging Game Pixel

Can computers actually paint? Of course not! But then how do the colorful images get on the screen? Cody and Pixi know the answer: the twins show children what pixels are and how a code can be used to create a large image from individual color information. On the screen or in the arranging frame – the principle is the same! In three arranging games that build on one another, children learn the basics of digital image construction and unravel the corresponding codes. Can the players recognize images in pixelated form as well and crack the binary codes? The aim of the game is to decode the information and place the color tiles in the right place!

Contents: 232 large pixel building blocks, 1045 small pixel building blocks, 1 arranging frame, 20 template cards, 1 set of instructions. Material: real wood, plywood, paper. Dimensions: arranging frame: 22,5 x 30 x 1,2 cm.

DigitalStarter: Algorithm

What does our morning routine have to do with an algorithm? Cody and Pixi can explain! The two siblings show players that all action sequences – from getting out of bed, to getting dressed, to running off to preschool or school – are carried out according to a logical pattern, just like with a computer. In three games that build on one another, the children create an understandable sequence for the whole morning. Who can create their own algorithm with the individual action sequences? Players also have to consider the conditions in the form of weather maps and then develop a code for the path to the destination!

Have you ever had to search for something in an untidy children's room? Cody and Pixi know the problem! Together with the players, the siblings discover how computers, unlike us humans, sort things and find them again in response to a search command. The children try out different ways of sorting with various things from their everyday life and understand the basics of simple search algorithms and a binary code. Who can keep track of everything while searching and sorting and manage to solve the tasks by assigning, comparing, and strategic search sequences, as well as finding the item they are searching for as quickly as a computer?

Loads of Cubes Pattern Thinking

Large quantities of the same material encourage children to create their own structures and shapes. This lets them structure the chaos, and create patterns and mathematical motifs. Suitable for creating 3D shapes like dice or rolls, or geometric shapes like circles, squares and regular triangles. Children love stacking cubes and building them into towers, walls, larger cubes etc. By letting children's imagination run wild and simply letting them build or arrange whatever they want they "dive into mathematics". The mathematically identical values also mean that the numbers and their relationship to one another can be represented. This lets a collection of cubes be clearly translated into numbers and number structures, for example 10×10 . A tower with 5 cubes is very clearly only half as tall as a tower with 10 cubes. The cubes therefore represent the regular composition of our numbers. The smallest unit is 1 (= 1 cube), which you can see and use to create all other numbers.

Form the middle, illustrate "straight" and "uneven"

White Cubes, bulk pack

Many white cubes of the same size with straight edges want to be brought into shape. Which pattern or which structure emerges – whether tower, circle, walls, or squares – is a matter of one's own creativity and imagination. Thanks to the exact same size, the cubes form surfaces without any holes.

Language, Communication, SEL: Social & Emotional Learning

Children love playing with their friends, scrambling about and discovering the world. This can also create conflict, as it's not easy to develop different ways of handling your own feelings and those of others. These conflicts help children to grow and develop the skills to manage them. Adults play an important role in this development. Children around us observe how we solve conflicts and learn the same behavior. Language is the key means of expressing feelings and is closely linked with the formation of our personalities and their stability.

How do You Feel Today?

Emotional skills or the ability to deal with one's own feelings and those of others, to understand others, to help them, or to comfort them, are important milestones in childhood development. These lead to the ability to negotiate interests with others and thus contribute to a strong community as a strong personality.

Role Play & Room Accessories

Children love trying out different roles for themselves. Whether it's a princess, knight, policeman, doctor or animal. Their imagination is constantly stimulated based on their age and the world around them. Role play is a key component of children's development and has a strong effect on them. As most games are played with friends, teachers or parents, these games quickly become part of the children's social interactions. This thus encourages children to try new patterns of behavior, ways of speaking, and creative ideas. Everyone involved shows different emotions and behaviors; these all require a reaction.

Role play enables children to immerse themselves in other worlds and characters and express their ability to act independently.

Special Needs

Every person is an individual with their own character, behavior, opinions, preferences, and needs. Educators are particularly challenged by children with special needs, but what counts as special? Children can be very relaxed and unprejudiced when dealing with each other's quirks. The important thing is that all children are looked after, challenged, and encouraged equally. Using resources appropriate for the child's age and their developmental stage as well as their strengths and weaknesses facilitates strong, formative progress, enabling them to grow into a capable, healthy adult.

Creativity & Art Materials

Creativity is closely linked with curiosity and the desire to make something new with the resources and materials available. When children have sufficient time and a stimulating environment, most will find it very easy to awaken their creative energies. They will quickly try new things and design something themselves, putting their ideas into practice and developing them. Children are proud to show what they have made, often giving their creations away and thereby gaining in self-confidence. The knowledge that they have made something using their own imagination and their own hands gives them the strength to face future challenges.

cʳə ɪˈvɪʃy = Creativity

... is the ability to approach challenges in a spirit of discovery and enquiry, and to carry out tasks using imagination and predictive and creative thinking. It is an ability that can be used to shape reality. Thinking and acting creatively is linked with cognitive processes such as problem-solving strategies and flexibility. Children have incredible potential for creativity, because they naturally experiment using trial and error. Finding solutions for tasks and problems on their own, for example, enables them to practice their creativity. Activities like drawing or sculpting are key for developing thoughts and feelings. Free experimenting and creating supports complex thought operations and problem-solving skills, and promotes freedom of expression and self-awareness.

CREATIVE ACTIVITIES

- Drawing complete stories
- Depicting connections
- Arranging elements spatially on a horizontal reference line
- Aligning pictorial elements to the area coordinates
- Drawing images of the outside world

- "X-rays" (draw internal and external view)
- Reference line pictures: Line on the ground, set from above / below
- Depicting people, then animals, plants, and everyday objects
- Increasing depiction and detailed representation of body parts and objects that interest the child

- Drawing on both sides of the paper. There is no top and bottom of the sheet.
- "Tadpole People" where the head represents the whole person
- Shapes controlled by the hand and wrist
- "Circle of me": Border between the self and the outside world
- First deliberate lines (first circles and crosses)

- Random scribbling – controlled scribbling – first purposeful scribbling
- Written scribbles (imitating writing)
- First desire to express: cross-shaped groupings
- Following movement: curves, circles, zig-zag scribbling
- Pointed scribbling (putting pencil to paper)
- Painting based on inner experience, without naming or explanation

- Marking locations
- Smudging and smearing
- Learning about materials

SCULPTURAL CREATIVITY

- Increase in the size of creative sculptures
- Three-dimensional creations
- Refining and combining approaches
- Developing different means of expression

- Combining materials
- Discovering ways of shaping surfaces
- Developing combinations of elementary shapes
- Learning how to depict complex shapes (e.g. people)
- Three-dimensional depictions of simple shapes
- Naming shapes and developing first purposeful depictions
- Focusing on the process of depiction, not the result

- Rhythmic coordination between palms and fingers
- Creating "sausages", "worms", and "balls"

- Using both hands to work on the material (e.g. clay)

Wooden toy and more to make yourself. Manual skills are fostered during measuring, sawing, sanding, and painting. For sawing, we recommend a saw board so that everything is nice and straight. So that the figures and animals stand up, they should be sawed off at least 1 cm thick. Pieces for hanging up can be thinner.

Note: Since the strips come directly from the manufacturer, the length will vary (approx. 40 - 60 cm). Depending on the thickness of the sawn off pieces, each molding will produce 30 - 50 pieces. For comparison: Rabbits 3 - 6.5 cm tall. Material: wood.
